Electronic journal club-blog.

Technology is used as a way to connect nurses and promote and support clinical and professional inquiry. In partnership with the information technology department and library, a website was developed when nurses can download, read journal articles and join a conversation with peers on a topic. Unit-based journal club meetings are extended as virtual meetings with 'blog' discussions. Pilot-testing is underway with ICU staff, with plans to expand the online meeting format to other Geisinger journal clubs.
