(i) the service or benefit will, or is reasonably expected to, prevent the onset of an illness, condition or disability.

(ii) the service or benefit will, or is reasonably expected to, reduce or ameliorate the physical, mental or development effects of an illness, condition, injury or disability.

DESCRIPTION:
Suprachoroidal delivery of pharmacologic agents is currently being investigated as a means to deliver higher levels of drug to the targeted tissue. The technique involves the use of a microcannula system that serves as a drug delivery channel with a fiberoptic light source for localization of the cannula tip.

EXCLUSIONS:
The Plan does NOT provide coverage for the use of suprachoroidal delivery of pharmacologic agents because it is considered experimental, investigational or unproven. There currently is insufficient evidence in the peer-reviewed published medical literature to establish the effectiveness of this technology on health outcomes when compared to established methods or technologies.

Note: A complete description of the process by which a given technology or service is evaluated and determined to be experimental, investigational or unproven is outlined in MP 15 - Experimental Investigational or Unproven Services or Treatment.

Medicaid Business Segment:
Any requests for services, that do not meet criteria set in the PARP, may be evaluated on a case by case basis.
