“Ain’t no party like a Scranton party!”
Are you a Pam at heart? Is Dwight your unquestioned spirit animal? Then this is your kind of event.

Join us at the historic Everhart Museum for a one-of-a-kind exhibition celebrating the 20th anniversary of *The Office, the show that turned Scranton into a pop-culture legend.

The Office didn’t just put Scranton on the map; it made it iconic. For millions of fans, this small Pennsylvania city became the unforgettable home of America’s favorite workplace comedy.

Now, two decades later, the Everhart Museum proudly presents The Office Exhibition — an immersive, four-room experience that brings the show’s story to life through the lens of Scranton itself. From on-screen moments to real-world fandom, this exhibition invites you to step inside the legacy, relive the laughs, and celebrate the place where it all began.

About the Everhart Museum
Founded in 1908 through the vision of Dr. Isaiah F. Everhart, the Everhart Museum was created to share art, science, and natural history with the Scranton community. Located at the entrance to Nay Aug Park, the Museum quickly became a cultural landmark, expanding its building and collections throughout the early 20th century to include natural history specimens, regional art, and ethnographic works.

Over more than a century, the Everhart Museum has continued to grow and evolve—adding notable collections in American folk art, Dorflinger Glass, fossils, and contemporary art while modernizing its galleries and facilities. Today, the Museum remains committed to Dr. Everhart’s vision, offering engaging, educational experiences that connect visitors of all ages with art, science, and history.
