Medical Assistance

Student Health Services can provide health services and referrals.

Students can go to Doylestown Hospital for medical services. A Sexual Assault Exam is available. The exam includes preventive treatment for sexually transmitted infections, pregnancy and evidence collection. A Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) or forensic examiner who has received specialized training performs the exams.

A police report is NOT required to receive medical assistance.

Safety & Security

Public Safety can provide immediate referral information to personal support as well as assist with information regarding an investigation. Reporting to Public Safety will also protect the community from future victimizations and help apprehend the assailant. The Public Safety Department is required to contact the local police any time a crime has been reported. This does not mean that the reporting individual must proceed with criminal charges.

Advocacy & Support Services

Resource Advisors: For immediate support, information and referral services. In addition, Resource Advisors can walk you through the policy on sexual misconduct and help you understand your rights and options for reporting. They can provide ongoing support through the reporting and investigation processes, if so chosen. Resource Advisors will report the nature, date, time and general location of an incident to the Title IX Coordinator, but they are not required to report name if that is your choice.
